Sterile Feral volunteers deserve big thanks

We recently received help from the local Sterile Feral Foundation regarding two feral kittens who decided to claim our backyard for their home this winter. Although they were wild, I was concerned for their safety, finding food and following nature's call to procreate bringing us more feral kitties.

I called Sterile Feral, and representatives Sherill and Eric Reichter responded immediately. They explained the rules of the Sterile Feral program, and accepted our two neighborhood cats into their program for neutering. Everything went just fine, and our two feral boy cats won't be dating any friendly girl kitties this spring.

A big thanks goes out to Dr. Reid, the veterinarian who drives here to Bloomington from out of town to spay/neuter 20-30 cats at a time. She donates her time and surgical skills, and this veterinarian should be commended for her actions.

And many thanks go out to the many other volunteers of Sterile Feral who donate their time, services, money and supplies to help spay/neuter these feral and homeless cats.

Sterile Feral is a good program with a good cause, and excellent outcomes. I encourage any animal lover to support the Sterile Feral Foundation - they're in the phone book, or call your veterinarian or local shelter for contact information.
